

Dispute Resolution Services

Facts, issues and strategy

Disputes and claims are a part of modern life. In today's environment, these disputes or potential disputes often involve complex financial, economic and business issues. Whether in litigation or other dispute resolution means, clients and their counsel require rapid response from forensic and financial experts to assist with making case-critical decisions.

At PwC, our purpose is to build trust in society and solve important problems. Over the years, we have been working with clients to establish the facts, analyse the issues and develop their dispute resolution strategies. Our specialist team advises on the financial, economic and valuation aspects of claims, assists clients through the dispute resolution process and provides independent expert testimony. We have handled complex commercial, economic and business disputes and are able to deliver powerful yet practical solutions to help you prepare for and respond to disputes.

Our strength comes not only from our forensic accounting expertise but also how we combine with valuation, economic and industry specialists across the global PwC network to respond to your needs. Whether you are already in or contemplating a dispute, we work closely with you to plan the best response and deal with it effectively. If matters do go to trial, our team can help you every step of the way.
